

Abstract of the Disclosure

A translation server system is to be provided, which enables, where information is to be sent from a recipient, the recipient and the provider to transmit and receive the information in their respective native languages, troublesome work on the part of the recipient to be minimized, and the communication cost to be saved by restraining unnecessary communication. In a translation server system for translating a hyperlink document prepared in the source language and supplying the result of translation to a terminal apparatus 20 having accessed the hyperlink document, a translation unit 14, when input target language translating instruction information F2 is supplied from the terminal apparatus 20, translates the input target language into the input source language.